Placing tokens at brand level instead of user level Open Discussion

- TS Tom Suurling
- Forum name: #Verbetervoorstellen

Currently, tokens are (automatically) set at user level when you create a webhook, for example. This is not useful because if someone leaves the company and the user needs to be deleted, this is not possible because of the token that falls under this user.

One suggestion is to put this somewhere under Administration.